All,

Hell there. First, thanks yet again for agreeing to sit on the end-of-week panel, I thought it went great! Each of you contributed with some bit of helpful and relevant info - well done! I would really like to hear what you thought, so please shoot me a line if you have any thoughts. And if I can remember, if I hear back from the New Crew on the panel I'll share that with you.

Have a great weekend!

Young Colleagues,

Hello. While I will send two reminders to our New Crew of the "debriefing" meeting for Friday afternoon, I also wanted to send a special note to you three as panelists.

First, thanks VERY much for doing this! This is the first time we've done this and I bet it will become a regular thing. I don't think there is any needed prep for this event, other than thinking about your first week and first year experience. What did you REALLY need to know for the first week and first year??? Maybe that important thing or things was (were) part of in-service and maybe not. That's our primary charge for tomorrow. I think we can keep it pretty loose, let our newbies drive it where they want. But if it's OK with you, just to get things going, I might ask each of you to talk briefly about your first week and first year, then we can open it up for Q & A. Sound good? We meet at 2 and we'll be in LIBS 213 (again). Thoughts???

Thanks again verrrry much, see you soon,

Ric
